Subtitle of the original: Jangan pernah Kepok-Kelepok Nulai Perputaran dan Kembali Diiku The end is near, the end is near! The end is near! I've been waiting for this day for years. I guess my last blog post will be a bit more personal than usual, as I haven't blogged that much lately. I've been meaning to write about the "milestone" of my career in modeling and modeling agencies, but I'm not feeling too confident that I'll make it. I'm nervous and I know that it's something that should be celebrated and welcomed, but I feel like I need to prove myself first before I can be truly proud of this chapter of my life. I've had a pretty nice career, and I know it's time to make some changes and get going on my own. I'm a free agent now. On November 10, 2017, I was last signed by the management team of my agency, The Agency Group. I'm not going to go into too much detail about my time with The Agency Group, as I wrote about that on my blog in detail. You can read it here, if you're curious. I have a bit of my story to tell and I think it'll be good to share it here. Why I'm writing this post is to let people know that I am now an independent model and I am continuing this blog because I'm confident in myself and I'm proud of what I have achieved in this industry. I also want to let everyone know that I'm still really interested in modeling and have plans to continue doing it in the future. So stay tuned for more news! When The Agency Group was my agency, I enjoyed my career here. It was a very close-knit group of people. It's not like any other agency in the industry, where I've only met a handful of models during the time I've worked with them. Even the management team was close and we shared a lot of love and support for each other. But I know now that it wasn't the right agency for me. You could say that this wasn't my ideal agency. I had hopes for another agency that I thought could help me achieve more and 82157476af
